'Tis the Season...to Be KIND!

In a season of tinsel and sparkle, add a touch of GOLD!

Jennifer N. Probst

Even though the holiday season should be filled with joy and peace, the world we live in has made it a time of stress and anxiety. Our society has become consumed with a more, more, more mentality, and we get caught up in the angst of finding the perfect gift, the closest parking spot, or the shortest check-out lane. Sometimes we forget to slow down and recognize that it isn't the money that we spend or the gifts that we give, but simply the spirit we possess; the spirit to live by the golden rule. Most of us learned the golden rule at some point in our childhood, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you," but how many of us actually incorporate this into our daily actions. Last weekend, an elderly woman fell in love with the 'flower pens' that I call my "bag flair." When I told her to take one, she looked at me like I had four heads before responding, "I can't just take one." I explained to her that if a simple pen made her happy, then it made me happy! She was so taken aback by this simple gesture that she showered me with thank you's, and told me she hoped something good would come to me in return. Later in the week, I was leaving the USF campus, and saw a woman about to purchase her $5 parking permit. I yelled for her not to swipe her credit card, and quickly ran to my car to retrieve the all day pass I had purchased just a few hours earlier. There was no sense in her purchasing another one if I was done using my own. Again, she looked perplexed at my offer, but thanked me profusely. She too told me that she hoped "it would come back to me." On the drive home, I began thinking about the simple (cont.)

gestures, and the fact that they meant so much to both women. Not only did they appreciate them, but they both seemed genuinely shocked that someone simply wanted to do something nice. I certainly don't expect anything in return, except that if I am in the same situation one day, someone will do the same for me. If we think about the little things that may mean so much to others, maybe we can all return to the spirit of the season. So while you rush around in the next few weeks, think about the simple gestures that have the biggest impact, and just make someone smile. Happy Holidays! ☀

Be Versatile!

Save Time and Money with Versatility

The newest addition to the BEad Different collection are necklaces with versatility! The funky, and chunky necklaces can be wore as a long strand, and doubled up with the ornate clasps in the front or back. They are the perfect addition to any fall/winter wardrobe paired with sweaters, turtlenecks or tunics. These functional pieces can be made in any color combinations, and they are flying off the tables as quickly as I can make them. Don't delay, be functional today!
